MOTIVATION

---

If we were to speak about our enthusiasm within our intention to make up this project, we would say that, with no doubt, important personal values such as artistic sensibility, pedagogical sense and the desire to work in a team hold major ground for our motivation. As aspirants at the "Ion Mincu" University of Architecture and Urbanism, we aim to share specialized knowledge related to plastic art, essential for admission to faculty. The motivating factor behind determining the evolution of the project is the desire to transmit, as much as possible, our skills to the children, with the ultimate goal of holding an art exhibition that would highlight the progress of the participants. Thus, it is needless to say that we saw this project through the opportunistic viewpoint of a challenge we needed to overcome for our own sake.

CONCEPT PRESENTATION

In the vast context of academically induced ideas, we paid attention to the great lack of promoting art related subjects. The important role creativity plays in a child's own development seems to be brushed aside, thus inhibiting one's mode of self-expression.

In this sense, the substantial consequences of such narrowed approach reflect onto the children's unitary desire to create, to explore and to discover their artistic universe. As might be expected, we took matters into our own hands by giving our participants the creative freedom they deserve in detriment to this predicament. By the complex organization that defined the development of our project, we found it important to assume the vast educational, social, artistic and other values. In defining our activities, which fulfill the pedagogical role assumed by the idea of a drawing club, we justify the community, but also the pleasure of working in a team.

ACTIVITIES – promotion

By December 12, 2022, we had started spurring our project ideas by personally presenting children our extracurricular proposal, expanding on our long term view regarding their development. In the scope of catching their attention, we also demonstrated our abilities by revealing some of our individual artwork. They could easily sign up to our drawing club by scanning the QR code leading to Google Forms on the cards they received.

By choosing the name "DOTS-Drawing On The Spot", we aimed to represent our personal interests and skills in the course of the project, as well as to promote them among potential participants precisely through the catchy title. We considered it necessary to associate the project with an easy-to-remember name, "DOTS".

CALENDAR OF EVENTS / ACTIVITIES

Starting by January 17, 2023, we would hold the drawing club meetings. They took place weekly on Tuesdays, in the 8th grade classroom C, from 13:30 to 14:30 pm. By analyzing the approach of the participants in this project, we may create a satisfactory picture of the activities' success, which proved to be useful in the harmonious development of the children, taking into account factors such as: their disposition related to the drawing of static nature, the optimistic attitude, as well as the specific laborious way of thinking. Given the shape of the structure of the school year, we held 4 such meetings of the drawing club, with an average of 10 participants, whose presence we got track of.
