MOTIVATION

We are two extroverted teammates who like to learn a lot, share knowledge, achieve new skills and experience new things. The desire to educate ourselves and others is what motivated us to take part in this project. Our determination, integration skills, seriousness, initiative and ability to work as a team make us great candidates for this project and will, hopefully, reward us with a place in this mobility.

CONCEPT PRESENTATION

After thoroughly analyzing all the PowerPoint presentations our team has seen so far, we sadly noticed the lack of knowledge and interest given by students when creating this type of project. Seeing it become such a common issue amongst pupils we want to fix it by organizing interactive workshops where interested students can achieve new skills in this field.

Our passion for public speaking and presenting interesting ideas are responsible for our desire to take action, since this problem is not discussed enough in schools. So we sat down and put together pieces of advice and tips on how to create a successful PowerPoint project that we later presented to different classes of students.

PROMOTION

To ensure a high attendance we announced our teachers about what exactly the concept is and asked them to raise awareness about it through the entire school, including their own students as well as other teachers. We also promoted it to our classmates and fellow colleagues from other classes and asked them to give us specific feedback about it to make sure they understood and liked the idea of the workshop.

ACTIVITIES - BENEFICIARIES

Our team consisted only in 2 participants who organized activities and workshops who were intentionally made and prepared for students of all ages. The workshops were presented to a total of three classes of students from our high school, as seen in the representative pictures, reaching a total of approximately 60 beneficiaries. The pupils were extremely engaged in the project and were not hesitant to contact us and ask us questions about how they could improve their own PowerPoint presentation in the future. They learned new and different techniques of using the PowerPoint program itself and we can confidently state that they gained knowledge and achieved new skills after attending our interactive workshops.
